Aesthetics and the containment of grief

by P.Kean

Abstract: The present work is concentrated on the notion of containment of grief as an observation that many peoples ubiquitously turn as an aesthetic practices and in response to the loss of a loved one. The aesthetic notion of closure is frequently invoked in connection with the needs of the bereaved, that while containing the emotions experienced in connection with loss is vital, unrealistic aspirations can encourage expectations that harm the bereaved.

Key words: aesthetics, history of philosophy, art aesthetics, containment of grief.
