by F.Xu Jiang

Abstract: The history of book in Europe was initiated many centuries ago. In our days the evolution of technology and especially in the field of ancient and Latin paleography had as a consequence the evolution of this science and above all the opening towards the conservation of books and documents that until now remained only sources sought after by a few researchers. The purpose of this paper is a paradigmatic analysis and demonstration of how the digitization of many ancient books has helped paleographic science in our days.

Key words: latin and ancient paleography, digitalization, history of book, european paleography.
